MUSTARD GIRL MUSTARDS.
For many people, Easter just isn't Easter without a nice ham. There's also some who think ham isn't worth eating without mustard. For those who fall in the second group, there's Mustard Girl All American Mustards. Jennifer Conner founded her company in Madison, Wisconsin, and produces four mustards that perfectly complement whatever you put them on. Choose from Stone Ground, Sweet n' Fancy Yellow, American Dijon, or Sweet n' Spicy Honey. Look for them at your favorite retailer.

JELLY BELLY. Few things are more closely tied to Easter than jelly beans and nobody makes them better than Jelly Belly. Jelly Belly offers 50 mouth-watering flavors that can be mixed and matched for totally unexpected flavor combinations. Visit their warehouse in Pleasant Prairie, take a tour, and visit the sampling bar to explore some of the possible combinations. Oh yeah, you can also take some home. A Bountiful Cupboard favorite is the Belly Flop package—less than perfect Jelly Bellys needing a good home.

YAHARA BAY DISTILLERS.
Nick Quint has made history. He has opened the first distillery in southern Wisconsin—ever. He's also made the smoothest, silkiest vodka and rum you will ever drink, and he has more artisanal libations in the works, including Honey Crisp Apple Brandy. Yahara Bay spirits are the perfect thing to put into the Easter basket for the grown-up boy or girl in your life. Keep an eye out, they hit the shelves toward the end of February.

CABIBBO'S BAKERY. Who would have thought that great traditional Italian baked goods would come out of a town more associated with lutefisk and lefse. Cabibbo's Bakery in Stoughton is known for its biscotti but at Easter time, the king is panettone. Order a one- or two-pound ring and Cabibbo's can bake it in the traditional Easter fashion with real or ceramic eggs imbedded in the dough. Italian or not, you're going to love it. Available at the Dane County Winter Farmers' Market, on-line, or through selected retailers.
